

No Mow May

We'd like our bees to stay and play,
so we're embracing No Mow May.

No need to cut the grass in June,
For our insect, it's far too soon.

We'll leave it wild through July,
to help the butterflies fly by.

An August trim suits us just right,
For flowers, bees and pure delight.

A touch of patience, letting grow,
As nature's beauty starts to show.

With buzzing wings and colours bold,
Our meadow's story will unfold.
